Reflection questions

- 1. What successes and challenges has your district experienced selecting instructional materials?
- 2. How are you using federal funds to identify which data you will use to determine whether the professional learning opportunities provide evidence of the desired impact on educators and students?
- 3. How well did teachers and school leaders embrace and support the implementation of the materials?
- 4. How well did the instructional materials support improved student outcomes in your district?
- 5. Where are students or subgroups of students still needing additional support?
- 6. How do the student and teacher data you've collected and the reflections about prior selections inform your goals and decision-making process for upcoming selections?
